Description:

At Michigan State University in the College of Engineering, we believe that to create successful students from first year to graduation we need to go beyond just offering services to students. We need to Engage, Educate, & Connect! In the last ten years, the Center for Spartan Engineering has become a focal point for the engagement activities in the College. This webinar explores the processes, successes, and failures of creating a successful engagement center. Specific examples and activities will be provided to participants for their own engagement activities.

Presenter:

Dr. Bernadette J. Friedrich
