Objective

The conference aims to provide a platform for academicians, research scholars, practicing managers and students of management to develop, contribute and present papers. A scientific understanding of the theory and practice of development finance is central to our understanding of how financial architecture emerges and evolves across developing, emerging and developed economies. The recent financial crisis has exposed major weaknesses in our understanding of how the elements that drive global finance operate. At the heart of this failure is the world’s inability to develop appropriate research in development finance theory and practice. To develop a credible and sustainable platform for finance research, academics, researchers and development finance institutions will be meeting at AMA, Ahmedabad on 26-27 August, 2011. The conference will be bringing together top development finance researchers around the country.
